

KARACHI INSTITUTE OF NURSING AND ALLIED HEALTH SCIENCES

Celebrating Nurses Making a Difference in People's Lives and their Profession!

Nursing is about caring for people. Its impact goes far beyond an individual person; it extends to its communities locally, nationally, and internationally. We need to be advocates for those in need and foster care equity, diversity, and inclusivity for those we serve. The nursing profession will insure every person's life has value, and everyone has a right to health.

The last few years have been especially challenging for the nursing profession. They have struggled with equity, diversity, and inclusivity issues and healthcare inequity has become more evident than ever.

We need to recognize each other for the work we are doing each and every day and offer gratitude for those efforts. Gratitude is defined as the quality of being thankful and being ready to show appreciation for and to return kindness. It's time to show some gratitude by saying thank you and doing random acts of kindness for our nurses.

"TBH I really appreciate the efforts of all nursing communities who had done their marvelous efforts for cover that COVID tough time with their kindness and gratitude and invested their hard work on people's health".

I can proudly say that I am a part of nursing school as a librarian.

HAPPY NURSES MONTH ☺
